Expansion at Boykin

During the summer of 1983, the Auburn City Schools vacated Boykin School. The City Manager proposed leasing the facility from the Auburn City Schools in order to house a number of non-profit and community-based groups that could serve residents of the area. Several groups expressed an interest in occupying available space in the building. In September of that year, the Auburn City Schools signed a lease on the building with the City. On November 28, 1984 the City held an Open House to introduce the citizens to the "Boykin Community Center" and its new tenants.

Boykin Community Center Gymnasium

Community children have access to computers.

In October 1993, a groundbreaking ceremony was held for the new Boykin Community Center Gymnasium. The addition of the gymnasium was a joint effort by the City of Auburn and the Auburn Housing Authority and provides space for indoor recreational activities and meeting room space.

Today, the Boykin Community Center serves as a multifaceted public facility. It is an excellent example of how a surplus school can be recycled into an effective recreation and community asset that houses a variety of agencies offering important programs to low- and moderate-income families (LMI). More than 400 children ages 6 weeks to 12 years old are enrolled in non-profit service organizations housed in the Center. These organizations provide a comprehensive range of services and age-appropriate activities for children and families designed to improve quality of life and to promote the development of children. Current tenants include:

Bargain Box: sells used clothing and other items at affordable prices.

Joyland Child Development Center: provides quality care for approximately 110 children between the ages of 30 months and 12 years for LMI families.

ACHR Child Development Program: offers a Head Start pre-school program for children ages 3-5 for low-income families.

ACHR/USDA Commodity Food Program: provides food pantry services as part of the ACHR program.

Auburn Adult Day Care Center: provides an adult care program sponsored by the East Alabama Services for the Elderly.

Auburn Day Care Centers: provides services for low-and moderate-income children from 6 weeks to 12 years old.

Seniors enjoy special programs and activities.

Expansion at Boykin

ACHR/Community Service Block Grant Program: provides low-income residents of Lee County with utility assistance and home weatherization.

The Boys and Girls Clubs of Greater Lee Co: offers programs to promote the development of low- and moderate-income children.

The Rainbow Room: offers fellowship, games, crafts, programs, and meals to seniors.

This Spring the City will expand Boykin Community Center to enhance the services this facility provides to Auburn citizens. In January, the City Council awarded the bid for a 7500 square foot addition at Boykin Community Center to J.A. Lett Construction Company. This expansion will provide additional classrooms allowing current programs that operate from the Center to expand programming, reduce overcrowding, and better utilize their space. Throughout the years, this facility has been transformed into an important part of the Auburn community by serving as a home to programs that have touched thousands of lives.

Council Supports Schools

In early February, the Governor announced a 6.2% proration of the State budget. This action resulted in the loss of $992,000 to the Auburn City Schools this fiscal year and, more than likely, next fiscal year as well. The City Council on February 6 voted to increase the City's appropriation to the Schools this year by $500,000. This money, coupled with reserves in the 16 mill tax funds, will allow the City Schools to weather proration this fiscal year.

"School funding is an extremely important matter to the City Council," said Mayor Bill Ham. "I am glad that we are in a position to appropriate additional money to the Schools this year. Cities, like families, have to make choices on where to spend their limited dollars. By the City's strong support of the Auburn City Schools, the library, and recreation programming, Auburn residents should know that children are most important to us," he said.

The funding approved by the Council will be paid in monthly installments over the next eight months. The City currently gives the Schools approximately $4 million per year, which is one of the highest levels of per pupil support by a local government in the State.

Recycle Bike Program

In January, four students graduated from the City's first Recycle Bike Program. As graduates of the program, Natasha Gupta, Tyshunn McCray, Tico Tolbert, and Brian Cook were able to keep the bikes they worked on and for which they received certificates of merit.

The Recycle Bike Program, an on-going program for children ages 8 - 14 coordinated by Phil Dunlap, Special Programs Director, was created to help increase an interest in bicycling. Citizens in the community donated bicycles for the project and participants learned many important bicycle safety tips and bicycle maintenance.

Brian Henry, a longtime bike enthusiast and employee of The Bike Shop, volunteered to instruct the students on bicycle maintenance. Dee Watson, Director of Frank Brown Recreation Center, taught the basics of bicycle safety.

The next Recycle Bike Program will begin in April. For additional information or to sign up to work as a volunteer with this program, contact Phil Dunlap at 887-4930.

Planting Begins on 2000 Trees

The Auburn Tree Commission is gearing up to begin planting 2000 heritage trees in the City of Auburn. "2000 Trees in 2000," a program created by the Auburn Tree Commission to help renew Auburn's urban forest, is the largest tree-planting program in the City's history. The City will soon be planting various types of oak and maple trees on private and public property. Citizens have been signing up for these trees since last summer.

The program is free to Auburn citizens. The homeowner's only obligation is to agree to assume ownership and to water the tree on a regular basis for the first three years after the tree has been planted.

Due to the volume of calls, the City has not been confirming receipt of planting agreements; however, citizens who signed agreements will be contacted prior to the trees being planted on their lots. The Tree Commission and the City are grateful to members of the Auburn University ROTC who have already volunteered their time to assist in evaluation of planting sites.

The City is now recruiting volunteers for the planting phase. If you or your group are interested in helping, or if you would like to plant your own tree, call James Jennings or Lance Kelley at Dean Road Recreation Center, 887-4930.

A limited number of trees are still available. If you would like to have a heritage tree planted on your property, free of charge, please stop by Dean Road Recreation Center, City Hall, or visit the City's web site at www.auburnalabama.org to download the planting agreement.

Library Closure

The Auburn Public Library will close Wednesday, March 28 and is tentatively scheduled to reopen at its new location on Wednesday, April 18.

During this time, Library patrons are asked to return all books to the book drop at the back entrance of the current library through April 12. After that date, please place them in the book drop at the new library.

Be sure to watch for next month's issue of Open Line for details on the opening of the new Library in April.

Notice to Roll-out Cart Garbage Customers:

Please have your cart at the curb no later than 6:00 a.m.

Public Hearing on Water Rate Increase

Because of on-going concerns with increasing production costs in producing the necessary amount and quality of finished water for its customers, the Water Works Board of the City of Auburn is considering a 5% water rate increase.

A public hearing is scheduled on Thursday, March 22 at 6:30 p.m. in the City Council Chambers at 141 N. Ross Street. If approved, this increase will become effective with bills received on or about October 1, 2001. The last water rate increase (5%) was in 1997.

If you have any questions, please contact Water and Sewer Director Rex Griffin at 887-4911, ext. 224.
